Bay school board to sue city for funds

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District board plans to file suit against the City of Bay St. Louis to obtain funds for purchase of modular classrooms.

The board agreed on a split vote Thursday to file the suit on the recommendation of Board Attorney Lucien Gex, rejecting Superintendent Roger Oge's recommendation that the district find an interim facility' for kindergarten while a long-range building program is implemented.

Board Member J. Cyril Glover made the motion to sue and Board President Betty Diboll seconded. Glover, Diboll and Reginald Robinson voted for the motion while L.D. Carter voted against it and Linda Penrose abstained.

Penrose abstained because her employer is Board Attorney Lucien Gex, retained in the motion to handle the litigation along with the Gulfport firm Bryant, Stennis and Colingo.

A motion by Carter to accept the recommendation by Oge' died for lack of a second.

Oge' had proposed five alternatives, which included the interim facilities recommendation as well as construction of a permanent kindergarten building designed by Architect Jules LaGarde but previously rejected by the board; seeking relief from the State Department of Education to delay implementation of kindergarten; suing and delaying the order for the modules: and suing and not dela the order.

St. Rose de Lima School was the only possible interim facility specifically named.

In explaining why he recommended that the board sue, Gex stated that he feels the issue is no longer over whether the district should house kindergarten classes in trailers or a permanent building.

"There is a fundamental issue here that I believe is larger than the question of whether to go with portable classrooms or a permanent

BAY ST. LOUIS, MISSISSIPPI

Gex was referring to a recent decision by the Bay St. Louis City Council that $350,000 authorized for construction of kindergarten classrooms not be released to the district.

Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr., speaking for the council, has repeatedly contended that the purchase of trailer classrooms does not constitute new construction and is therefore inconsistent with the city's advertised intent for use of the

"To go along with the (council's) decision would relegate the school board to the position of having to go with hat in hand to the city everytime we need money," Gex stated.

"If we don't do this now, I think we will have this problem for an indefinite period of time in the future and at least for the next three

"The board did not initiate this. This was initiated by the city council's refusal," the attorney added. "The fact that a suit has been authorized does not preclude any of the options proposed by Dr. Oge.'

Gex added after the meeting that the suit would probably request some type of injunction to expedite any hearings in order to avoid delaying implementation of kindergarten.

Also after the meeting, Waveland Elementary School Principal and District Kindergarten Coordinator James Baldree said he presently plans to make no recommendation regarding a delay in implementing kindergarten.

He explained that all preparations for kindergarten have been completed other than actual housing for the classes and the preparation of a handbook containing a physical description of those facilities.

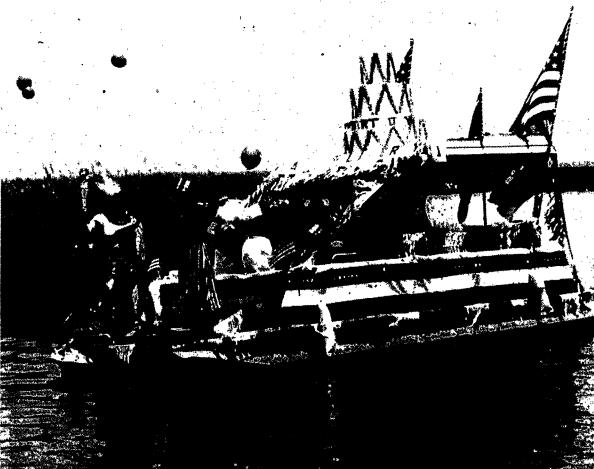

Baldree repeated his contention that trailers are not the district's first choice but have become "our only alternative at this point."

"At this point it is the only alternative we have toward providing safe, comfortable and appropriate classrooms for these children by Aug. 25. Everything I've recommended has been centered on the needs of the children," the coordinator said.

ANOTHER VICTORY—Bubba and Cris Williams' boat was selected as the 1986 winner of the 3rd Annual Garden Isles Association Boat parade held on Saturday afternoon. The winning boat, which had won last year, had a large cake on top, a statue of liberty and all riders in costume. Other families included on the winning boat were Lester and Lillian Alberes, and Richard and Anna Brehm. Second place went to the Shirley Schwebel family and third to the Mike and Laura Green family. Some 32 boats participated in the community event followed by an association picnic. Judges were Hancock Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, and East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department Administrator Bill Fields Jr. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

The structure, also known as Claiborne High Rise, will be removed and replaced with a bridge. Scafidi began driving pilings last week and the old culverts will be torn out beginning Monday. Courrege said Thursday the road is expected to be without a bridge for about 10 days, depending on weather conditions. Late Thursday he was attempting to obtain a pontoon bridge from the U.S. Navy Construction Battalion for use as temporary structure but plans to provide a boat at the crossing if the pontoon bridge is not available. He also said he was working on instructions for fire, medical emergencies, and mail service while the bridge is out and plans to distribute them to the subdivision's residents. Board President Betty Diboll nade the request Thursday afternoon after a special board meeting was interrupted several times by spectators.

The letter of request, addressed to Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr., states that the officer is needed "in order that all unruly persons can be removed from the room."

It further states that at Thursday's meeting, which concerned kindergarten classrooms, "the proceedings were frequently interrupted by cat calls, boos and disturbances, despite the fact that we frequently called for order." 'When a duly constituted body has difficulty conducting business by rude and unruly individuals, democracy is threatened by 'the law of the jungle," Diboll's letter states. Diboll said Saturday morning that she had not yet received a reply from Franckiewicz. She explained that Thursday she had invoked the board's Policy 18, which states that anyone wishing to address the board must be on the meeting agenda and must submit his agenda request by 4 p.m. the day before a special meeting called with 24 hours notice.

"We were going by Policy 18 and at it, Dibon said of spectators at Thursday's meeting. "They said things like this is Russia and you won't let us talk."

She said Policy 18 was the result of a judge's order and is designed to allow people to get on the board

She added that board members have been having problems outside of meetings.

Board members have been subjected to verbal harrassment. Our phones are ringing off the hook night and day. A lot of the time you pick up the phone there's nobody there, or there's someone screaming something very unpleasant.'

The Vietnam Memorial

By Robert I.Alotta, Ph.D. Communications Department Mississippi State University

The photographs, the videotapes. should have prepared me for the real thing. They didn't.

The Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., is unlike any military monument I've ever seen in the United States. Over the years, I've visited many - from Benedict Arnold's boot on a marker at Saratoga to the USS Arizona in Pearl Harbor, from the Doughboy on Spring Garden Street in Philadelphia, PA, to the countless gravemarkers at Gettysburg and Shiloh.

Generations have looked - and will continue to look - at these markers and remembered with patriotic passion the deeds of those commemorated.

But the Vietnam Memorial is differen it is a long slab of black marble that cuts through the earth in a quiet park near the Lincoln Memorial. Sunken in the ground, it cannot be seen from the street. It cannot be seen from the federal office buildings across from it. Was it hidden from federal eyes on purpose? Did someone think that by burying it, the memory would go away?

The memory of the men who died in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, however, will not go away. The memorial's marble blackness draws vou inside. You can see your face mirrored in the names. A volunteer told me that ninety percent of the people who visit will find someone with the same surname; eighty percent of the men will locate someone who bore the same first and last names. The message, it seems, of the memorial is simple: war affects

I looked for names of men with whom I had served during the Vietnam era. Bill Bader, who sat behind me through four years of high school and who said at graduation he'd learned more about the back of my head than anything else, and Charlie Burkhart, who used to sit and drink Jack Daniels with me at Fort Jackson. Their names were there, and so were those of others.

I didn't find their names when I first walked through. There are too many, far too many names park service volunteer helped me by checking an index. a gigantic paperback at least two inches thick. When I got the coordinates, I went back.

The way the memorial is built, you start at ground level then descend until the names loom over your head. There's a single name at either end, but I was hard put to count the ones in the middle. Ironically, the architect was telling the American people the story of the war. As the war raged on, casualties mounted and we were in

Naval Oceanography Command over our heads, The center po The center point of the memorial sinks to the point of deepest depression, as the war was to the American people. The memorial rises again regardless of which way one turns. Was it intended to mean that the American spirit, indomitable as it is, will rise again, despite provocation of war, despite political machinations?

I found Bill and Charlie's names where they were supposed to be, and I could see their youthful faces in my mind's eye. The reflection of my middle-aged face and gray hair, however, haunted me. We were young together, now only I was old. A former student of mine, born in 1963, came with me to the memorial.

He never realized the impact of the war. He was unsettled by the fact that both Bill and Charlie were his age when they died.

For a moment, he faced his own mortality, and the fact that someday, perhaps, his name might appear on a similar black slab. I doubt, and I told him so, that there would ever be another monument like this one. I hope to God I am right.

Then, I thought, perhaps we shold create such memorials for all our wars, and program a computer to cross-tabulate all the descendents of death, so that all Americans could understand the inheritance of citizenship and strive for a better

As we walked away, we noticed the bronze images of three soldiers, life-size sculptures of typical Vietnam soldiers. The metal is of combat green, and their skin shines as if they received daily doses of atropine.

The artist was able to capture their watchful eyes, as they guarded their fallen comrades.

It was strange, I thought, that we guard the Tomb of the Unknowns with living soldiers and light an eternal flame for a fallen president, but leave the Vietnam dead to maintain their eternal vigil with just metal objects to keep them company.

If it had not been for volunteer Vietnam veterans, that would have been the case....forgotten by all except their comrades. Since the monument was erected, one volunteer told me, not one hour has gone by without a veteran standing watch over his fellow soldiers.

The trio, I realized, was an afterthought, an attempt to make this unique memorial less unique and more in keeping with traditional monuments.

It was a mistake. Vietnam was different. It was unique, and Americans should never be allowed to forget that fact. And we should never be allowed to forget that the men whose names are etched into that black marble were not in Southeast Asia because they were soldiers of fortune.

They and those who returned were fighting a war for the United States government. They were only doing their duty as American citizens, whether they knew or believed in the basis for the war.

I walked away from the memorial, wiping tears from my eyes. I was crying, not for the dead, but for the hundreds of thousands of Americans who will not see the memorial firsthand, the people who will not be touched by the sheer magnitude of names, the sad reflectioon of ourselves in its black depths.

I cried also that the proud names of the dead didn't face the federal bureaucrats so that they could be reminded on a daily basis of the lesson of the past.

State closes gravel pit

A gravel pit in the northwest corner of Hancock County has been closed by the state Natural Resources Commission.

The gravel pit performance bonds, owned by Johnny Hickman, were seized by the commission during its monthly meeting in Jackson.

According to Bill Gilliland; administrator of the department's mining and reclamation section, Hickman failed to pay for a third bond and reclaim the land as required by state law with permitted mining operations.

The commission meets once a month to consider state Natural Resources Department recommendations.

"We called his bond," said George Williamson of the Attorney General's Office. "When they start a gravel pit operation, they must post albond. The purpose of the bond is to provide money to reclaim the land ble. The man (Hickman) told us he's going to appeal."

Gilliland said Hickman has had problems with the department since 1981 when he paid a $5,000 bond for 10 acres. Hickman purchased another bond of $10,000 for 20 acres, and he began his mining operation without the proper permits, but they were later issued, Gilliland said.

"We've threatened to bring him before the board before. The whole works has been a disaster." said**

Gilliland. "We have had a difficult time receiving annual reports. Our certified letters to him have been unclaimed, being returned marked address unknown. It's been a rare case when we've been able to contact Mr. Hickman."

Gilliland said Hickman is leasing the land upon which the gravel pit is located from Georgia Pacific Lands. State law stipulates mining permits may be issued when the party agrees to submit annual reports to the department and to implement land reclamation.

"Reclamation includes the smoothing out to stabilize sand piles, filling in depressions and sloping and grassing any banks of lakes that may remain," said Gilliland.

According to Gilliland, Hickman paid $15,000 for bonds on the 10 and 20 acres, but failed to acquire a third bond. He paid the minimum bond fee of $500 per acre. The maximum

It isn't true that I'm trying to work up a recipe for tomato ice cream, not really - but I must confess that's about one of the few uses I haven't tried to find for those wonderful and, so wonderfully abundant and vineripened luscious tomatoes!

I have eaten, and I have made, a tomato soup cake, but I don't recall when or where or what about it, at this moment. But, I confess that I'm eating tomatoes 'round the clock, or almost, these summer days, those extra-good, home-grown tomatoes mine or friends' bounty.

For, believe it or not, this browner-than-brown thumb gardener is actually raising a crop! There are the tomatoes, the peppers, even the herb garden, with dill and oregano and rosemary and chives and parsley, all but overflowing the box garden!

It's difficult for me to believe, also, so I might as well confess that it's really not my doing at all - except for the fact that not even my fatal brown thumb has managed to kill it all off - it's the work of Bill and Roi, who brought the whole delicious. array of plants over from their Mandeville home, and dared me to grow 'em to harvest!

It wasn't too difficult, even for me, with such a good headstart down the road, once I had managed to convince Peanuts-the-Cat and the fat brown rabbit and the huge German Shepherd down the road that they were to keep out of the garden patch. Generous dustings of black pepper around the edges helped me in this

So, with the bounty of my harvest, and that of generous friends, I shan't have to endure a "store-bought" tomato for awhile.

And, like the canny squirrel, I'm hoarding for the winter (for I cannot abide those marbles in the stores in winter) and am making up and freezing uncooked as well as cooked fresh tomato sauces and other combinations.

Freezing, I might add, affects the texture of tomatoes, so it's best to use your frozen tomatoes in cooking - but I also freeze a number of tomatoes whole for winter use.

Meanwhile, I'm enjoying tomatoes in many ways, almost around the clock, from a fresh tomato omelet at breakfast to salads at lunch to sauces and main dishes and stewed tomatoes and so on at dinnertime.

One of my favorite ways to enjoy the tomato harvest (aside from devouring one right from the vine. unadorned by any seasoning but the summer sun (or, perhaps, a swift twist of the pepper mill) is that favorite of summer salads, simple

Order a necessity at public meetings

It is impossible to conduct business in a public meeting in a circus-like atmosphere.

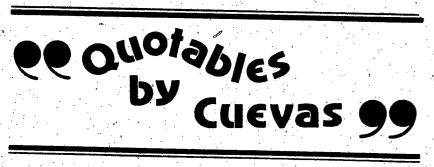

Thursday morning's meeting of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees was marred by frequent outbursts from patrons attending.

The board's president had to call for order numerous times.

Now a request has been made by the school board's president to the Bay St. Louis mayor to provide a police officer at future meetings.

No meeting can be conducted with cat calls, comments, critizism, and outbursts while business is being discussed.

In all of Thursday's commotion, we wonder who was thinking of the children?

We have never seen so many people in such a small section of Beach Boulevard as we did Friday night waiting for the Crab Festival's fireworks.

The Ulman Avenue Pier also had on it the most folks we have ever seen at one time.

Fireworks appeared to be among the many favorites of the Crab Festival, which continues through today.

The festival, sponsored by Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, is located at the intersection of US-90 and Beach Boulevard ir Bay St. Louis.

St. Rose DeLima's 60th Anniversary Church Fair also continues through today.

St. Rose's Fair is located on Necaise Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

Two events becoming popular are the Garden Isles Annual Boat Parade and also the Jourdan River Shores Property Owners Association Boat

The Garden Isles event was held on Saturday and there was a 35 per cent increase in the number of boats this year for the third such event.

Every boat owner tries to outdo his neighbors in decorations, and the judges there too had a hard time naming the winners.

All participants at the boat parades appeared to have had a good time.

It is not too late to warn everyone to be extremly careful while traveling on the final day of this long weekend holiday.

Our highways should be bumper-to-bumper this afternoon with visitors returning home.

Have a safe holiday.

A good feeling always comes over us when we are told about the professional way our firefighters and law enforcement officers conduct themselves.

On Friday one of our visitors was telling us how they were treated by everyone when their property was involved in a fire.

This party said they could never expect to receive such treatment in the city of New Orleans.

We are still small enough for our professionsals to give that personal service to our residents and visitors alike.

It is hoped we will continue to act that way no matter how large we grow.

JACKSON- Former Harrison County sheriff Eddie McDonnell who died the other day was a Damon Runyon character who hovered around the state political scene during the salubrious prohibition days when the Gulf Coast basked in illegal gambling and booze.

McDonnell had served his first term as sheriff on the coastal county during the administration of Gov. Hugh White from 1952 to 1956.

White, a huge, blustery, lovable figure had a penchant for sending the National Guard out on liquor and gambling raids. But in keeping with the custom of the time, the Gulf Coast resort area was always left untouched.

However, a U.S. Senate rackets committee investigation of Coast gambling about the time he took office put the heat on White to keep the lid on gambling as much as possible. Gambling had become so pervasive that there were slot machines ("one arm bandits") in every store, in drug stores and hotel lob-🚅 bies around Biloxi,

Once White sent Highway Patrol investigators down to Harrison County to check on rumors that gambling was flourishing in a number of night clubs. It was so, the patrol sleuths reported back to White, and handed him a list of White forthwith summoned Sheriff McDonnell to come see him at the_ governor's mansion. "Eddie, I've got a lot of places in your county where gambling is going on, and I want you to shut them down," the governor declared. McDonnell whipped out a little black book and said, "Governor, let me see that list. If they're not in this book, they're not operating." The* stubby, dark-skinned McDonnell explained in his Back Bay brogue that he had waged an expensive campaign to get elected and he had to recoup his money. His hefty belly bouncing with laughter, White waved the Coast sheriff away with the admonition not to let it get out of hand. From then on the understanding between White and McDonnell grew into a warm friendship.

In the 1955 governor's race, White was trying to help then Attorney General J. P. Coleman get elected, and he wanted McDonnell to do a favor for him. When Coleman was to speak on the Gulf Coast, White said he wanted the sheriff to make sure there was a big crowd on hand.

"Remember, I'll still be governor until next January," White cautioned the sheriff.

McDonnell came through. He ordered all the night clubs and bars to shut down and the barmaids, strippers, bartenders and owners to turn out for the Coleman speaking on the beachfront.

Coleman, who was running on a crusade against gambling and booze, made the same speech he had been making up in the hills. He was amazed at the size of the Coast crowd, not knowing how it got there.

When the votes were counted in Harrison County, Coleman didn't get enough to fill a hat. Nevertheless, he was elected statewide. Coleman had also acquired McDonnell as a friend and a major fund-raiser in the campaign.

So when time came for dishing out jobs in his administration, Coleman had a commitment to offer something to McDonnell, who now was out of the sheriff's office under the one-term limitation. McDonnell wanted to go on the State Parole Board because he had a few friends at Parchman he wanted to let out, but he wound up taking the job of chief law enforcement officer for the Game and Fish Commission.

McDonnell admitted he knew nothing about wildlife, and that the only quail he had ever seen was in a Biloxi strip joint. But there was a sweetener to the job that was tossed in by Rex McRaney, whom Coleman had made director of Game and

Instead of having to come to Jackson, McDonnell was allowed to make his headquarters in Biloxi. Whenever he had to come to Jackson, he could charge mileage. Somehow, Game and Fish survived those four years with no appreciable damage.

McDonnell made a comeback for sheriff in 1963, winning his second and last term as Harrison County's top law enforcement officer.

It was well known that McDonnell had a weakness for letting Biloxians operate booze or gambling if they had gone to school with him, or had been his contemporaries as a youth.

He confided to a friend a few years ago that once he had a caller from New Orleans named Carlos Marcello who came bearing $2 million in cash. The cash was McDonnell's, Marcello explained if the New Orleans racket boss could get a toe-hold in Harrison County.

McDonnell eyed the cash, then pushed it back. "If any mafia is going to operate here, it's going to be my mafia," the ex-sheriff told the friend he had related to Marcello.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Couple appalled at school board's refusal to hear new superintendent

Editor Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

We are appalled by the Bay-Waveland school board's willful refusal to allow Superintendentelect Dr. Roger Oge"s input into a major financial decision that will greatly affect the budget with which he must work this year.

What kind of a board hires a highly qualified and experienced executive and then refuses to even hear his recommendations? If board members cannot or will not try to make the most informed decisions possible, perhaps they should remove themselves from the decision-making process altogether. Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Allison

Visitors who stand in the road can go home and stand in their own road

July 1, 1986 Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

I am not trying to step on anyone's toes, but would like to know if anything can be done about the congregating on Beach Boulevard at Buccaneer Park during the

I travel the Beach Road at least twice a day on weekends. Lately when I get to Buccaneer Park I can't even go 5 mph. The people who come over to the park area don't seem to want to go in the water, get on the beach or stay in the park.

They seem only to want to stand in the road. If you drive by them you have to be in the middle of the road and they won't budge to move over and let you drive by.

I'm very irritated that something has not been done. The police are very often close by checking for license or something.

This could very well cause an accident and then who is responsible? I really like my city and want the people who come over here to enjoy it; but when someone acts as though the road is the only place to be, well, I feel they can go home and stand in their own road.

I would appreciate any assistance you may offer to help alleviate this

Citizen help available to school board

June 30, 1986 Editor The Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

I was impressed and encouraged by the results of the Search Committee's efforts to locate and hire our new superintendent, Dr. Oge', and I was confident that the same thorough, painstaking effort would be given to instituting kindergarten. At first my hopes were confirmed.

I applauded the Municipal School Board's rejection of a grossly inflated building bid as good business But now I see that this business sense has apparently deserted them under pressure.

Perhaps I've missed an article but I find it hard to believe that all possibilities for an alternative to ... trailers and a law suit have been ex-

In fact, my main impression is one of a last-minute rush to make decisions literally for the sake of making decisions. But why?

The pressure is no greater now than it would be if a September hurricane destroyed classrooms and alternative arrangements had to be made almost overnight.

No, I wonder instead if the school board isn't experiencing "burn-out"?

And this is why I'm writing. There are many, many concerned parents, citizens, taxpayers in the community who would gladly help search for alternatives to trailers.

I hope that our school board will reconsider these decisions and take advantage of the resources in the community instead of applying stopgap measures to this important

School board reminded primary task is to represent citizens

Sea Coast Echo Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

On June 26, a majority of school board members told us that they intend to run our school system with no input from parents and students or from Superintendent Oge' and Mayor Franckiewicz. The board members must believe they are dictators, not representatives. Despite public demands to the contrary, the board voted to force trailers on our kindergarten students. Only Danny Carter cared enough to oppose the decision. President Betty Diboll said, "We wouldn't be in this position had the board been left alone." She apparently doesn't like to hear from concerned parents, teachers or students. She also didn't want to hear from Dr. Oge' even though it will be his job to try and clean up the mess that the trailers will create. Even though requests were made, Mrs. Diboll refused to allow Dr. Oge' to speak until the board had completed its action.

I believe it is time for the board to remember that it is here to represent the demands of the people.

It is also time for the public to examine carefully the job our board is doing and to act accordingly. Sincerely,

George Paul Bay St. Louis

Uniform traffic accident report helps to make highways safer

The most likely time for a fatal accident in Mississippi is between 7 and 8 p.m. on a Friday. The most common single-vehicle fatal accident involves driving off the left side of the road. In 1985 accidents, 88 percent of those killed were not using occupant restraints, and 86 percent of those injured were not using these safety devices, Such facts are typical of the information now available after 18 months of the legislative requirement that all law enforcement agencies use the state's uniform traffic accident report.

The legislation, which was enacted by the 1984 Legislature and became effective Jan. 1, 1985, helps the Department of Public Safety tabulate consistent data concerning traffic accidents, said Ronald G.. Sennett, traffic records coordinator for the Highway Safety Division, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

Prior to the uniform report, which was designed by a committee of law enforcement agency representatives and others concerned with highway safety, approximately 44 different forms were being used.

"With the new report," Sennett said, "we can store in the computer about 200 different units of information for each accident, and this information is extremely valuable to law enforcement agencies, ambulance services, highway planners and others concerned with traffic accidents."

He noted that information on where and when most accidents occur can be valuable in staffing and assigning law enforcement officers and emergency medical personnel, information on drivers involved in alcohol-related accidents can help to get bad drivers off Mississippi highways and information on highway characteristics where most accidents occur can help in placing warning signs or making highway changes,

What could appear as 'dull statistics' gained from the uniform accident report are among our most valuable tools in making Mississippi highways safer.

Shrimping closed in Louisiana's western zones

Louisiana's spring inshore shrimp season closed Friday in two areas of the state because significant numbers of small white shrimp were showing up on the nursery grounds, officials said.

Law provides the season must close when data indicates the need to protect the "forthcoming white shrimp population," said Burt Angelle, secretary of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries.

Mississippi officials, however, have not yet seen a need to close Mississippi waters to shrimping.

Fred Deegen, head of the fisheries division with the Mississippi Bureau of Marine Resources, said he heard about the situation in Louisiana last week and suspected a similar problem in the western end of the Mississippi Sound.

However, bureau sampling showed that the young white shrimp were not moving to estuaries in Mississippi yet. Deegen said as soon as the shrimp count gets below the legal limit of 68 a pound, near shore areas will be closed.

The bureau takes samples weekly of the shrimp population at nine stations in the sound.

Areas closed in Louisiana include a portion of Zone 2 from Bayou Lafourche to South Pass of the Mississippi River and a portion of Zone 3 from the western shore of Vermilion Bay to the Texas state Zone 1, east of the Mississippi, will stay open until further notice.

NSTL, USM sponsor fifth Aerospace Ed Workshop

The fifth annual Aerospace Education Workshop, co-sponsored by NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories and the University of Southern Mississippi, will be held July 7-11 at NSTL.

The course is designed to familiarize teachers and administrators with the role that aviation and space exploration can play in developing the school curriculum. The course is also open to individuals with a special interest in the aeronautics and aerospace fields and can be taken on a non-credit basis.

Directors for the workshop will be Dr. Theron Manly, associate professor of educational leadership and research at USM Gulf Park; Jim McMurtray, NASA aerospace education specialist; and Dr. Jerry Brown, NSTL's chief educational programs officer.

Registration will be completed July 7 from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. in the Visitors Center lobby.

Three semester hours of graduate or undergraduate credit will be awarded upon successful completion of the intensive course. Students must develop a written project designed to implement the concepts learned into their class curriculum. The project will be due July 25.

Class sessions at NSTL will be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Teacher Resource Center located in the Visitors Center.

For further information about registration and the workshop, interested persons should contact the Division of Lifelong Learning at USM Gulf Park in Long Beach. The telephone number is (601) 865-4508.

USDA Mailing wheat poll ballots Wheat producers will soon be receiving ballots to determine whether they would favor imposing mandatory limits on wheat production. The balloting is for a poll required by the Food Security Act of Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, said that producers will be asked if they favor imposition of mandatory limits on production of wheat which will result in wheat process that are not lower than 125 percent of the cost of production.

"Response by wheat producers is voluntary," said Gennin, "and the poll is non-binding upon the Secretary of Agricutture. The results of the poll won't require the secretary to take a particular action. It's not a referendum, but is a way for wheat producers to express their desires about a farm program"

Wheat poll ballots will be mailed to each producer on June 25. Responses must be postmarked by

To be eligible to vote, farmers must have produced at least one crop of wheat during 1981 through 1985 on a wheat acreage base of at least 40 acres.

Acreage reports now being accepted The Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office is currently accepting acreage reports for 1986 planted, diverted, idled and other farm program acres.

The final reporting date is July 15. according to Gennin.

"Before program participants can receive the benefits of price support, deficiency payments and other benefits, the entire farm must be certified correctly," Gennin said.

Program participants are required to report crops and acreages planted and the uses to be made of these crops, acreage conservation reserve or idled cropland, and acres diverted for payment. He said that producers not participating in the 1986 programs should report their. crops to insure future benefits and to protect acreage bases.

After farmers report their acres, the ASCS county office will select farms at random to verify that acreage reports are accurate.

"Certification is particularly important to producers of quota crops such as tobacco and peanuts. In addition to these crops, however, all crop acreages must be

The Waveland Regional Board has reached a compromise in a dispute over engineering charges, but the decision cost $10,000.

Locally purchased ice cream could contain contamination

BY DENA BISNETTE

An ice cream product purchaseable in the Bay St. Louis- voung children, elderly people or Waveland area may be contaminated by bacteria.

According to Russell Caldwell, manager of the Waveland Delchamps store, the product is marketed under the name Polar Bar by Kraft Inc.

Caldwell said he had received calls Saturday morning from a few customers who told him they had purchased boxes of the product containing lot numbers released by the

One customer quoted a report in the New Orleans Times-Picayune-States-Item, which stated that Kraft Inc. had allegedly found bacteria contamination in product samples with the lot number 51-64-26 stamped on cardboard trays containing six ice cream bars.

The report also quoted Kraft Inc. spokesman-Scott Horne as stating that the bacteria causes flu-like sypmtoms including vomiting and

The illness caused by the bacteria takes 10 to 12 days to appear and is most dangerous to pregnant women, anyone with a weakened immune

Caldwell said that the home office of the Delchamps chain is closed for the July 4 holiday weekend and the earliest he expects to be able to obtain further information on the product Monday.

At present, Caldwell said the Waveland Delchamps is offering a refund for the product. However, he is advising customers who have bought the product to keep the ice cream bars for a few days.

"They might want want to hold onto it in case illness develops so that the doctor will be able to analyze the bacteria and treat the problem more effectively," he said.

At least one of the customers who called him indicated that she planned to have the product analyzed.

He added that the product is a common item that is likely to be available at other major chain groceries and convenience stores.

"What's going to happen is they're not going to be having class, and I don't believe any of the people bringing up these concerns in these meetings have children for kindergarten," Baldree added.

He said he and other administrators had inspected some of the proposed interim facilities, including st. Rose, and had found none of them suitable.

"I don't think they're talking straight," said St. Rose Pastor Father Jack Sheerin on Saturday, who did not attend the meeting.

"First they say they need eight classrooms, then they order six. Then I hear we have some type of heating problem. I don't know if we' have a heating problem that would make those rooms unsuitable," he

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm asking a lot of people around here to make sacrifices to let them use the building, but we would be willing to do it. We have lot of programs like CCD classes and Alcoholics Anonymous that would have to work around them, even though our programs are after school hours."

Sheerin said the facility was inspected twice by school officials and by Franckiewicz.

'They have been told this place is available. They have to think about what they're doing by purchasing trailers. Those trailers will be there for 10 or 15 years, and I think that would be holding back the school

Although Thursday's meeting was called expressly to discuss the suit, it was also time for criticism.

The board was criticized by three people who had made agenda requests. They included Grant E. Tingstrom III, who said Gex should forfiet his fee if the district loses the suit; Joseph Colson, who said the board should hold its meetings at night when the general public can attend; and Clyde Ladner, who called trailer classrooms "fire traps" and quoted Federal Emergency Management Agency statistics on mobile home fires.

The press was also criticized when Diboll said she felt the public had not been given a full picture of the situa-

· She stated that at a previous meeting, she had explained why the school board had elected to purchase trailers but had had her remarks "ignored by the newspapers."

"This board wanted to build Mr. LaGarde's design. Certain peoble were against it and the city council said it was too expensive."

"I was called and told I would go to jail if we built this building. The public doesn't know that," Diboll itself by misusing Policy 18. "The intent of the policy, as ordered by the court, was to provide orderly access to the public. It is now being used a weapon against the public," the mayor said.

"I agree with the intent. You have to have an orderly meeting." "Thursday's meeting got disorderly, but I feel that the board members brought it on themselves by stating that they want to hear from the public when they really don't. I think the public sees the hypocrisy in that."

"I think what's inflaming the public more than anything is that the school board is not listening to the public but is listening to its attorney," Franckiwicz added.

Diboll has said that she plans to move future meetings, including a special 7 p.m. Wednesday meeting called to discuss kindergarten classrooms and the district's building program, to Waveland Elementary School if Franckiewicz refuses to provide a police officer.

DEBBRA PURSLEY AND RAYMOND MALLEY

Benoit-Labat

St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the June 14 afternoon Nuptial Mass joining Crystal Angela Labat and Alton Joseph Benoit Jr. in marriage. The Rev. Francis Theriault officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph (Rudy) Labat of Bay St, Louis. The groom's parents are Ms. Irene Benoit and Mr. Alton Benoit Sr., both of Pearlington.

"Appropriate music was presented by planist Alfrizer Acker and soloists Darlene Lee and Paul Stewart."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an ankle-length gown of her own design, fashioned of ivory moire taffeta with fitted dropped waist bodice. Candlelight Alencon lace adorned the bodice and sleeves and was embellished with hand embroidered pearls. She wore a wreath of ivory satin flowers with illusion veiling.

The bride carried a cascade of pink silk roses, ivoy spider lilies and stephanotis with baby's breath and satin streamers.

Tanya Acker of Bay St. Louis was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Dorothy Gordon of Waveland, sister of the groom, and Darnell Farve of New Orleans.

The attendants were attired in tealength gowns of pink moire taffeta, designed and fashioned by the bride. Each featured high mandarin collar, fitted bodice with flared skirt and dropped waistline and white lace and pink pearl trim, which outlined the neckline, waist and threequarter-length sleeves.

The honor attendant wore a white lace teardrop hat with waist-length veiling. All wore white lace gloves and carried lace fans with pink spider lilies and satin streamers.

Flower girls were Tashonda

Benoit and Tezeina Benoit, nieces of the groom, of Pearlington and Bay St. Louis, respectively.

Ellie Harrington of Waveland was best man. Groomsmen were Stanley

Christmas and Eric Labat, brother of the bride, both of Bay St. Louis.
Ushers were Brian Labat of Bay St. Louis, cousin of the bride; and Albert Labat of New Orleans, brother of the bride.

Brent Acker of Bay St. Louis, godchild of the groom, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Labat chose for her daughter's wedding a beige silk dress with matching jacket in a rose pattern. The groom's mother wore an ivory chiffon dress with double surplice drape in the front.

A reception followed the ceremony at St. Rose parish hall. Arrangements of pink and white carnations and gladioli with fern greenery and areca palms decorated the hall.

Assisting at the reception were Melissa Bradley, Janita Lee, Ciara Ishem and Tamara Jones, all of Bay St. Louis.

On return from a wedding trip to Pensacola, Fla., the couple makes their home in Bay St. Louis.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Manhattan Academy in Jackson and attended Hinds Junior College. He is employed with the Keesler Medical Center, USAF.

The Woodcock home will be the setting for a 6 p.m. garden ceremony on July 12.

Pursley-Malley

The forthcoming marriage of Debbra Louise Pursley and Raymond Kent Malley is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Sones of Waveland and Mr. and Mrs. James T. Pursley of Slidell, La. Mr. Malley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Laverne Malley of Fenton Community.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bay Senior High School where she received the journalism award. She attended Jefferson Davis Junior College and is employed with Jitney-Jungle.

Mr. Malley is a graduate of Hancock North Central High School and attended Pearl River Junior College. He is employed with the Waveland Police Department.

The couple will solemnize vows July 19 in a 2 p.m. ceremony at Annunciation Catholic Church in Kiln, with reception following. Family and friends are invited to attend.

'Speaking Oracles of God'

-I Peter 4:11

Bay St. Louis

5:19-21)

There are those who say love is the only law. Others say, "If it feels good do it." But what is love? Love fulfills the law. For this thou shalt not commit adultery, thou shalt not kill, thou shalt not steal, thou shalt not bear false witness, thou shalt not covet, it is briefly comprehended in this, namely, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self." (Rom. 13:8-9) adultery manifests a lack of love for self as well as a lack of love for the sexual partner. Both sin against God, themselves and one another. They condemn themselves. (Gal.

Freedom is not a means to cover up evil. The citizen is taught, "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake; whether it be the king, as supreme or unto governors, as unto them sent by him for punishment of evil doers, and

For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men: as free, and not using your LIBERTY for a cloak of maliciousness, but as servants of God." (I Pet, 2:13-16)

The only limit God gives to the

law conflicts with God's spiritual law. When the Jerusalem court commanded the apostles not to preach

Jesus, they refused to obey. They said, "...We ought to obey God

The conduct of nations determine

FREEDOM

501 Pine St.

The whole world cries for freedom. But do men really have the true concept of freedom? Do people often confuse freedom with license to conduct their lives in any way they choose? What about the rights of children born and unborn? Can women enslave themselves in their clamor for equality?

Paul taught, "For brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the another."((... i.id)

When one defies the nature of God and his own nature, he is the loser. The Christian is set free from sin. He is told to, "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again in bondage."(Gal.5:1) It is like warning one freed from prison not to get in prison again. Christians must not allow passions, lusts, and appetites of the flesh to rule their lives. The fleshy appetites involve
